CAN SAVE $100,000

By Changes Made in Grading of Garlicky Wheat

M. O. PENCE PRESENTED DATA

Farmers of Delaware would save more than $100,000 annually on their marketing of wheat if changes are made in the grading of "garlicky" wheat as suggested at a conference held at Chicago last week and which was attended by representatives from Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Delaware was represented at this conference by Walker Mifflin of the State Board of Agriculture and M. O. Pence of the University of Delaware, who presented data to show that the present grades of wheat, now classed as garlicky, are too strict, and that they can justly lower the market value of wheat below its true value in view of the fact that a large part of it can be milled without the so-called garlicky flavor. At the present time the spread between "garlicky" wheat and wheat which would grade the same but for the garlic averages throughout the year 12.6c per bushel and the range is from 5c to 22c per bushel. The heavier cut applies, too, when the major part of the wheat goes to market during July, August, September and October. The garlic grade is at present determined by the fact that one or more bulblets are found in 1,000 grams, (about 2½ ounces) of wheat. On such a basis it is practically impossible to load a car of wheat in Delaware which will not grade garlicky, even though the miller could use it to full advantage. More than 90 per cent. of all the wheat grown and sold in Delaware grades "garlicky", and 75 per cent. of all the wheat sold in Pennsylvania and Maryland grades the same way.

It was pointed out by representatives of the Eastern States that during the war the United States Grain Corporation made a difference of only 2c per bushel between garlicky wheat and wheat free of garlic of the same grade. Also, before the war about the same difference existed when "garlicky" wheat was known as No. 2 Southern. It is evident that the name itself, "garlicky", depresses the market unduly even though the garlic is present in such small amounts as to be almost negligible.

Representatives of the Philadelphia Grain Exchange supported in the main the contentions of the Eastern States representatives and said that they anticipated no difficulty in exporting wheat having as high as three or four bulblets to each 1,000 grams. There was evidence presented on the part of large milling interests to substantiate the claims made about the milling of garlicky wheat with a small per cent. of garlic present.

If the Eastern States representatives secure a lowering of the garlic grade to three or four bulblets to 1,000 grams instead of 10 to the 1,000 grams which they asked, it will be possible for a large part of our wheat to go into the market under the straight No. 2 grade and thus make the saving first mentioned. The matter is now in the hands of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who will render a decision in a few days. Messrs. Mifflin and Pence of Delaware will be keenly disappointed if these grades are not changed in part as suggested. It will then be up to the farmers to clean their grain so that it will come within the regular No 2 grade, which will be possible in the majority of cases.

A DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL

It is hard to put into words and cold print the warmth and friendly atmosphere which was manifest at the Social given in the lecture room of the Presbyterian Church last Tuesday evening. The room itself, with its beautiful decorations of plants and cut flowers was especially inviting. The chairs were arranged in a semi circular fashion on each side of the room. Every chair was occupied and everyone, old and young, seemed to radiate happiness and cheer. There was not a dull moment at anytime during the meeting. The evening program of entertainment was under the management of Mrs G. Lindsay Cochran. The various numbers on the program were excellently presented and well received, in every instance the talent was of a high order. At the conclusion of the regular program of music, the ladies of the congregation served delicious cake and ice cream. The little bags which were sent out with the invitations returned well filled with the coin of the realm. The proceeds from the Social are to be applied on the purchase of a new motor for the organ. Anyone who had anything to do with arranging and helping in this splendid social evening are to be congratulated upon the success of the undertaking. Such entertainments are specially helpful in promoting the social life of the church. We all need to get together quite often in a social good time.

New Century Club Notes

A most delightful program was given at the Club on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. F B. Watkins was chairman for the day, and read a very interesting paper on the Life of Edward MacDowell, artist and composer. She was followed by Miss Frances Watkins. "Selections of MacDowell", as follows:

"Improvisation", "From Uncle Remus", "The Eagle", "Witch", "Ladylove", "French Dance", "To a Wild Rose", "To a Water-Lily", "Dance Audalouse". This recital was one of the most delightful programs ever given before the club, and was a genuine treat to all.

Mr. John Spicer recited "An Egotistical Lover", which won the town and county prizes in the recent contests. On next Tuesday afternoon there will be no meeting, but at 8 o'clock that evening in the Club House, Mrs. Julian B. Foard has arranged for a party in honor of our school teachers. Every club member is urged to attend and bring one or more guests. Be sure to notify the club hostess, Miss Helen Brady, to-day (Saturday), so she can make her plans accordingly.

Middletown High School Lost

The duPont High School base ball team visited Middletown, Tuesday afternoon, and defeated the local High School team by the score of 16 to 14. It required ten innings to decide the contest.

B. ARNOLD AND GEN. GRANT

BY REV. EDWIN WHITTIER CASWELL

Often the jealousies of generals have decided results on battle fields, and change the destinies of nations. Our Revolutionary struggle for freedom and our Civil War were no doubt greatly prolonged by the plotting of leading officers against one another. Such men evidently cared more for their own personal promotion than for their country.

Benedict Arnold had enemies of this character, who sought to depreciate his early victories in Canada, who cast a cloud over the glory of his dashing, fearless, triumphant leadership. While not attempting to apologize for Arnold's treachery, may it not be well to enumerate some of the reasons for his traitorous fall, that others may avoid such a lamentable career.

Previous to the hour of his ignominious betrayal, he had performed splendid service for his country. He was brave, wise, discerning and overwhelmingly impetuous in the crises of battle. He was a born soldier, impatient of restraint and remarkably successful when allowed freedom of action. Washington, who was his firm, unfailing friend, said of him, "That, by Arnold, every thing would be done that valor or prudence could suggest. A more active, a more spirited and sensible officer fills no department in the army".

Arnold, on returning from Canada, at the height of his fame, found that five subordinate officers were promoted over his head, to become major generals, while his own name was purposely omitted from the list. General Washington was greatly surprised and incensed, as was Arnold himself, and plead with him not to resign his commission, as he contemplated doing.

Officialism in Congress offers a fine opportunity for the plotter to knife the rising general and make a place for himself or his friends. Arnold, who had buried his bitterness, was the bravest of the brave at the battle of Saratoga, where Burgoyne surrendered and the destiny of the American republic was really decided. General Gates, who was seeking to supplant Washington, desired all the glory of the victory for himself. He therefore communicated the news directly to Congress, leaving Washington to learn of the victory as he might, and entirely ignoring in his report General Arnold, who had gone into the conflict against Gates' orders, and who had really turned the tide of battle by his tremendous assault upon the British forces. Think of it! While Arnold was an invalid from the wound received at Saratoga, his jealous enemies muck-raked in Canada for charges against his personal integrity, claiming that, in making his financial account to the war department, he had been dishonest.

The Board of War investigating the matter, declared that Arnold had been cruelly and groundlessly aspersed, but a court martial trial never ends. Enemies perpetuated the scandal; coldness and opposition were often manifested by former friends who had been poisoned against him. Washington, to show his confidence in Arnold, gave him the command at Philadelphia when the British forces evacuated the city. Here, new charges for extravagance were prepared by his persecutors and not only sent to Congress, but to every State. He was formally acquitted of the charges, but, to satisfy his enemies, he was sentenced to receive a reprimand from General Washington. This was no doubt the cruel blow that decided his destiny.

At this time, Arnold wrote to General Gates, exclaiming, "By Heaven! I am a villain if I seek not revenge for injured honor".

The aim of this article is to show that the noblest manhood cannot be driven into the ranks of the enemy. The man who trusts in Almighty God to avenge him and give him the proper place in His eternal annals, will not betray his principles to gratify his feelings of revenge. Such a man will not sell out to the devil for the sake of punishing his enemies.

General Washington was maligned and secretly opposed by designing officers, and by officialism in the government as much as Arnold was, but he ever stood true to his country and his God. An immortal man cannot afford to assassinate his own manhood in order to overthrow his personal opposers.

The man who cannot stand the pressure of trial, of false friends, of want, ignominy and devils, is not the man God wants in his company of immortals. Men must learn to endure hardness, as good soldiers of Jesus Christ, in battles oft, in prisons, in persecutions, they must know that all these afflictions will redound to the glory of God and the nobility of character. Paul revolutionized the world from his dungeon; Bunyan from his prison and Jesus from His cross. We must be willing to die to become worthy to live; willing to be humbled before we are exalted. This is the Divine rule to be observed by travellers on the pathway to glory.

Let men walk over your body, tread down your reputation, destroy your interests, social and financial, and when they have you in the dust, thinking they have destroyed you, like the great Apostle, after being many times left for dead, you will rise and be going, stronger and grander than ever before. If you are right with God, you need not worry about your standing among the multitudes of mankind.

It is said that, when Arnold came to die, at the age of 56 years, 22 years after the betrayal of his country, his mind was upon the battle fields of the Revolution in which he had been engaged. He called for the old uniform, worn on the morning of his escape to the British lines and exclaimed, "Let me die in my old American uniform; God forgive me for ever putting on another"! This would indicate that, at last, Arnold had found peace with his God, whom he had betrayed, as well as his countrymen.

General Grant suffered in a similar manner to Arnold, but with vastly different results. Grant, a West Point graduate, had resigned from his captaincy in the regular army, in order to enter business life. When the Civil War broke out, he asked for restoration to the regular army, but the Washington authorities denied his petition. Grant showed the right disposition in being willing to take a subordinate place as Colonel of a regiment of volunteers. General Hallock, a major general of the regular army, who was Grant's superior officer, disliked and detested Grant. When Grant asked permission to proceed against Forts Henry and Donelson, Hallock told him to mind

The Trustees of the Middletown Academy have made a cinder foundation in front of the public school building, and within a few weeks will have a fine concrete walk laid. This will be a much needed improvement to the school property as well as a great convenience to pedestrians in that section of our town.

A sudden drop in the temperature throughout lower Delaware on Saturday caused fruit growers much anxiety Saturday night and Sunday night, as it nearly reached the freezing point, but fortunately a light wind blew, thereby keeping the branches of the fruit trees moving and reducing the chances of a frost.

Final plans are being made for the fourth annual conference of high school teachers of the State to be held at the University of Delaware, May 5 and 6. It is expected that every high school in Delaware will be represented at this meeting which is one of the most important of the year in State educational circles.

Mr. Jesse L. Shepherd informs us that he will begin in a very short time to erect a new building on the site where the old postoffice building was destroyed by fire. At this writing he has not decided just what size building he will erect, but in all probability it will be much larger than the old one and modern in every respect.

The teachers and pupils of Smyrna are having their annual ten day Easter vacation. This is to give them a short rest before going into the Spring term. This vacation is not only welcomed by the students but by the teachers as well. The school term requires 180 actual school days under the new code. The Smyrna school year will consist of 185 days.

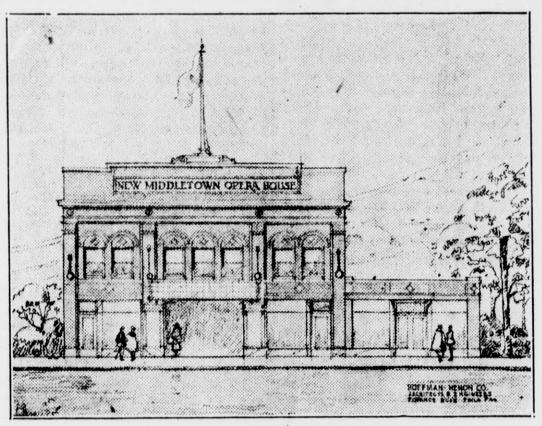
Contracting For Corn And Tomatoes

Mr. G. Harold Baker, of Aberdeen, Md., proprietor of both the local corn and tomato canneries was in town on Wednesday and Saturday of last week making contracts with our farmers to grow sugar corn and tomatoes for this season's pack. He succeeded in contracting for 600 acres of sugar corn at $10 per ton and 110 acres of tomatoes at $12 per ton. Mr. Baker hopes to increase the acreage for tomatoes to 135, and anticipates a very heavy pack this year.



NEW MIDDLETOWN OPERA HOUSE

A $60,000 Opera House will be built on the site of the building which was destroyed by fire April 6th. The new building will be 46x126 feet and is designed to seat 800 people. It will include a complete stage, 20x42 feet, equipped to handle amateur and professional productions. The building will be of brick and hollow tile, with concrete floors and balcony. The front of the building will be two stories high and on each side of the entrance there will be a store, while there will also be a separate store, one story, 92x100 feet, alongside the main building.

Will Open Season April 29th

The management of the Middletown Athletic Association have decided to open the base ball season on Saturday, April 29th. The team selected as the opponents for the local boys is the New Castle Reserves, a strong team from that town which is under the management of James J. McDevitt.

The lineup of the local team is about completed and will include several of the old favorites and a few new men have been added. "Joe" Clay, of Elkton, Md., who pitched for the last two years for the Krebs team of the Suburban League has been signed to do the pitching for the locals and with Weber back on the job as catcher the Middletown team is assured of one of the fastest batteries that it is possible to find on the peninsula.

Manager Stevens wants all who have an idea of playing ball this season to come out for a practice game on this (Saturday) afternoon Clay will be present and wants to meet his team mates.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Katie Green, who departed this life April 22, 1921.

As the evening sun is setting,
Oft times as I sit alone,
In my heart comes a feeling,
Wishing Katie could come home.

Now our home is sad and lonely,
How we miss her smiling face
But she left to remember,
That no one can take her place,
Sadly missed by her
FATHER AND MOTHER.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, April 23d, 1922. 1st Sunday after Easter.

Services: 10.30 A. M. Morning prayer and sermon.

11.45 A. M. Church School.

7.30 P. M. Evening prayer and address.

There will be a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary at the Rectory, on Friday afternoon, at two o'clock.

Never have we had so devotional a Lent; and many showed it in crowning it with a triumphant Easter! It was an ideal Easter Day and everything combined this year to make the Festival even more than usually helpful and inspiring. The day began with the Early Communion with a goodly number present. At the later service the church was well filled, and the whole service was beautiful and uplifting. In the evening, the children of the Church School held their own service and presented the amount of their Missionary Mite Box Offering, and the total amount received will be given later.

We have heard many expressions of the pleasure at the wonderfully beautiful services and music which shall long be remembered. But the best thing about the day was the earnest and devout participation of the people in its worship, and the opportunity for many to meet with one another in the Lord's House.

On Easter Monday, the Annual Parish and Vestry meeting was held in the Parish House, and the following gentlemen were elected to service in St. Anne's Parish for the ensuing year: Senior Warden, Jefferson B. Foard; Junior Warden, James Gaylord Braggon; Vestrymen, Frederick Brady, William G. Lockwood, Joseph Biggs, George V. Peverley, Joseph Hanson, Julian H. Foard and Benjamin Gibbs.

A meeting of the newly elected Vestry will be held at the Rectory on Monday evening, April 24th, at 7.30 P. M., at which meeting, delegates to the Annual Diocesan Convention will be elected. The Convention will meet this year at St. Philip's Church, Laurel, on May 14th

We wish to thank all those who so kindly loaned their potted plants and gave flowers to beautify the sanctuary on Easter Day.

FOREST CHURCH NOTES

PRESBYTERIAN

Sunday, April 23d, 1922.

10.30 A. M. Morning service. Sermon by the pastor.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School.

7.30 P. M. Evening service. Sermon by the Pastor.

Mid-week service, Wednesday, 7.30 P. M.

Boy Scout meeting every Friday at 7.00 P. M.

We were delighted to have such a large attendance at both services last Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants. The special music by the choir was very much appreciated by all. Many were kind enough to say that the entire services were not only beautiful, but inspiring. The whole aspect of the church work is very encouraging at present. The signs are very hopeful for increased activity and growth along all lines. If we all do our part, there is no doubt that Old Forest Church will take on new life and power for increased usefulness in the Master's service. We would like to see as many as possible of the people in our town and community, who are without a church home, come and unite in worship and service with our church family. We have a family circle where brotherhood, love and friendship may be found. You can be a member of the family where God is the Father, and Jesus Christ, the elder brother. The best proof of our brotherhood, love and friendship is for you to come into actual contact with us. Test our claims and we will leave you to decide whether or not we live up to our profession. The final word of this invitation is come and see.

FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL

Funds Will be Used to Purchase Pumping Fire Engine

UNDER LOCAL MANAGEMENT

In answer to many inquiries regarding the Firemen's Carnival, which is to be held in Middletown June 24th to July 1st inclusive, we have decided to offer the following explanation:

First. Our principle object in holding the Carnival is for the purpose of raising funds to enable us to purchase a Pumping Fire Engine, similar to those used by the visiting firemen, who rendered such valuable service at the fire of April 6th, which destroyed the local Opera House and postoffice buildings. Many of our citizens who witnessed the difficulties we had to contend with during the progress of that fire have advised us to purchase a Pumping Fire Engine.

Second, We confidentially believe that the people of Middletown and the surrounding countryside fully realize the necessity for a well equipped fire company in this town, and also believe that they will give us their liberal support in our undertaking to raise funds for this purpose.

Third, The Carnival will be under the management of a Committee selected from the members of the Volunteer Hose Company, and none of the so-called crooked schemes used by many of the traveling carnivals will be permitted on the grounds.

N. W. KUMPEL,
Chairman Carnival Committee.

OBITUARY

Daniel Tibbett

Townsend Correspondent

While accompanying his two cousins, Frank Powell and William Boyles, the latter being in charge of a team that was engaged in hauling stone from Townsend to Fieldsboro, for road repair work, Daniel Tibbett, aged 14 years, and son of Mrs. Mary Tibbett of Townsend, met with a tragic death as the result of an odd mishap that occurred while the wagon containing a ton and a half of stone was passing Ginn's Corner. The unfortunate lad was sitting on the seat occupied by the other two, when suddenly having lost his balance, he fell off and while his two companions made an effort to grab him as he slipped off the wagon, their efforts were fruitless, and before the team could be stopped the front wheel had passed over his body, crushing him fatally about the chest. He was picked up and hurriedly brought to his home here and medical aid summoned, but his delirious state and alarming condition deemed it necessary to remove him to the Delaware Hospital, and was sent there in an ambulance. At that institution upon his arrival, his condition was found to be so serious that his death was considered to be only a question of a few hours and in an unconscious state, he died at 11.45 on Saturday night. An examination at the hospital showed that his left arm was broken and the breast crushed.

Tibbett was one of the best-known and best-liked boys in the neighborhood. He was a cheerful, companionable fellow and was keenly interested in outdoor life. Deputy Coroner held an inquest to inquire into the case on Monday and returned a verdict of accidental death.

The funeral which took place at one o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, was largely attended, many of his schoolmates paying tribute to his memory by their attendance and their floral offerings, the flower contributions being elaborate and gorgeous from the school children and a number of others of his large circle of friends. The services were conducted by Rev. George P. Jones and interment was made in the Townsend M. E. Cemetery.

The mother, his three brothers and two sisters have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

George Edward Kilkoph

George Edward Kilkoph, aged three years and two months, died at the Jefferson Hospital, in Philadelphia, Wednesday morning, Apr. 19th, at five o'clock, The child was the son of George and Anna Kilkoph, of Odessa, and was taken to the hospital for treatment Monday afternoon, but the little fellow who was suffering with diabetes, never rallied and died as above stated.

Funeral services will be held at the residence of his parents this (Saturday) afternoon, at one o'clock, and interment will be made in St. Paul's M. E. Cemetery, Odessa. Relatives and friends are invited to attend without further notice.

Mrs. Daniel Husfelt

On Friday evening last occurred the death of Mrs. Martha P. Husfelt, after a long illness, at her home in Grove Neck, near Earleville, Md. Besides her husband, Mr. Daniel Husfelt, she leaves seven children to mourn the loss of a loved mother: Mrs. Elizabeth Spear, Mrs. Bertha Allen, Misses Effie, Lucretia, Daisy and Winnie Husfelt, and one son, Parker Husfelt; also three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from her late residence on Tuesday morning at 10.30 o'clock with interment at Cecilton cemetery.

Man-Tailored Topcoats; Knitted Bathing Suits

IT IS the fashion to be sensible—that is, when it comes to choosing one's street suit or topcoat. The topcoat patterned after big brother's or hubby's own is woman's pride this season. To be swagger style, these mannish cloth togs must be of staunch and sturdy cloth which guarantees outdoor service. Where do you suppose we go to buy the real thing in these coveted coats? Direct to a man's tailoring establishment! It is a fact several leading manufacturers identified heretofore the country over as makers exclusively of men's suits and coats are producing strictly tailored garments for women this season.

Mannish Cloth Togs.

These coats of masculine type to be correct must have the characteristic neat collar, wide belt, roomy sleeves and deep pockets without a compromise toward any detail which savors of the feminine. The illustration demonstrates this mode.

Melton cloth, which is noted for its light weight and heavy appearance, is the favorite fabric, although tweed is a close rival. The herringbone pattern, which is so well thought of for men's suits and coats, is quite as appealing to sister and mother this season for street wear.

If it isn't the topcoat mannishly fashioned then it is the suit, which milady insists must be built on conventional lines. For the business woman who has no time for frills these new modes are especially appropriate. Yet I think me that a touch of the eternal feminine in the way of a bit of crochet lace is sure to reveal itself when the coat is thrown open, although the strictly tailored lingerie shirtwaist is really in keeping with the vogue, which proclaims men's fashions as women's fashions this season.

It is a question whether beige or gray has preference, and many of the lighter two-tone brown effects are noted.

The suit in the picture was developed in gray homespun and it is the type which is ever ready with no wear-out to it.

According to the calendar, anticipation will soon be realization to those looking forward to the season of swimming and sea-bathing. Why not forestall the usual plea of regret, "I have no bathing suit," by preparing aforetime.

It was remarked at the sea-coast winter resorts this season, that the plain high-quality knitted bathing suit was prime favorite. Of course there were many novelty creations which pass under the title of bathing suit, which are in reality bench costumes of the elaborate sort. If one is not a water fan, this sort of outfit is charmingly in accord with the picture, but when it comes to real sport, genuine healthy hearty playing the waves, or professional swimming, nothing gives the satisfaction of the knitted bathing suit.

It is, however, good economy to buy only the best. There are certain standard makes which guarantee fast color and enduring shapeliness. It is a waste of money to invest in any other.

Some of the new knitted suits are most attractively designed as verified in the accompanying picture. This model is to be had in very interesting color combinations, such as gray with navy, scarlet or orange border. It is of jersey knit and in every line shows that style and becomingness has been thought out by the designer down to the slightest detail.

The attached full skirt is belted and bordered, in a way which adds to the general attractiveness. The refinement of this suit is one of its characteristics.

It is just as essential to wear attractive correct accessories with the bathing suit, as with one's dressiest costume. Bathing caps are becoming millinery achievements these days. The rubber flower caps are great favorites. For instance an ocean blue cap is entirely covered with white petalled rubber daisies. Roman stripe bandanna caps are immensely becoming and it carries out a color mode which is fashionable throughout dress accessory this season.

For beach capes there are creations in rubberized silk in gayest colorings. The three-piece bathing suit with knitted cape to match is meeting with success, not only because of its attractiveness, but also from the standpoint of utility.

The Costume Slip.

There is a definite need in every woman's wardrobe for the costume slip. In many instances it serves for the skirt when accompanied by a tunic blouse, or for an underdress with a frock of sheer crepe or silk. Make it of crepe de chine, washable satin, Habutai, canton crepe, taffeta, satin bricolette, handkerchief linen, voile or lingerie cloth. Lower edge about one and one-half yards. Size 36 requires [illegible] yards of 40-inch crepe de chine. This is a very useful slip for women and misses of 32 to 44 inches bust measure.—Delineator.

Crepe Tub Frocks.

Cotton crape is being used for tub frocks for small children, and there is a rage for natural-color pongee. Wool jersey is playing an increasingly strong role in the development of dresses for small girls, one smart little model recently seen being made dressy by having an accordion-plaited skirt bound all around with a narrow silk braid in contrasting color.

THINGS TO KEEP FOR REFERENCE

The foundation sauce for all cream soups, scalloped dishes, souffles and croquettes may be kept in mind so that one will always have the right proportion for each dish.

When preparing cream soups or thin sauces the one-to-one proportion is used, one cupful of milk or other liquid and one tablespoonful each of butter and flour for the binding. This proportion is used for all soups, scalloped dishes, creamed dishes and almost all sauces used with meat, vegetables and puddings, where a thin sauce is liked.

These sauces are varied by different seasonings and flavors. A tablespoonful always means one filled and leveled with a spoon; a cupful is one-half pint and when buying measuring cups be sure you get a standard half-cup, for a cup may look all right and lack from two to four tablespoonfuls of the standard size.

The one-to-two sauce is the same proportion of liquid with two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked together; it is the most used for scalloped and creamed dishes. The vegetables are cooked and the creamed sauce added. Scalloped dishes are prepared by using the same quantity of sauce and food, placing them in alternate layers in a baking pan and covering with bread crumbs well buttered by stirring them into melted butter. The dish is then browned in the oven.

The one-to-three sauce is prepared in the same way, using three tablespoonfuls of butter; when melted and bubbling hot the three tablespoonfuls of flour are stirred in, then the one cupful of milk or liquid added and cooked until well done. If this sauce is used for souffles, then whites of the eggs, using three, and equal portions of food and sauce are used; the egg yolks cooked in the sauce and the whites folded in at the last.

The foundation for croquettes is one-to-four, using the same amount of liquid and four tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter. This sauce is used with an equal measure of food and cooled. Then the mixture is shaped into any desired croquette form and fried in deep fat.

For meat sauces one may use the liquid from cooked vegetables like spinach, celery, green peas or tomato juice, flavoring with onion, garlic, bay leaf or spices.

For pudding sauces, fruit juices, canned fruit juice, water, milk, cream or melted jelly.

WHAT TO EAT

On the farm or where one has plenty of milk and cream there is little appreciation of cream except as a butter maker. There are so many delicious dishes which may be made from sweet cream, not forgetting the whipped cream cake which is the cake par excellence.

Cream Muffins.—Mix two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of sugar. Add the cupful of sweet cream, beat thoroughly and bake in muffin tins in a hot oven. One-half cupful of chopped dates may be added, if desired.

Cream Pastry.—For a covered pie take one and one-half cupfuls of flour mixed with a quarter of a teaspoonful each of salt and baking powder. Mix with sweet cream to make a mixture just stiff enough to roll.

Quick Griddle Cakes.—Stir a pinch of soda and one-half teaspoonful of salt into a cupful of sour cream. Add flour for a thick batter and beat until perfectly smooth. Thin with sweet skim milk to the desired consistency; it should be like good cream. Lastly stir in two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Cream Cookies.—Beat two eggs until very light, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a little grated nutmeg. Stir in a cupful of thick cream, two cupfuls of flour, mixed with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and enough flour added to roll. Roll one-quarter of an inch thick, sprinkle with sugar, cut in shapes and bake quickly.

Buttermilk Pie.—Take one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one egg, a pinch of salt, two cupfuls of buttermilk with flavoring to taste. Soften the butter, cream it with the sugar, add the flour and mix again, then put in the salt and an egg unbeaten. Beat these ingredients very light and add the buttermilk and flavoring. Cook the mixture until thick, then pour into a pastry shell previously baked.

No Refuge.

Dr. William Norman Guthrie, whose prismatic sermons have dazzled New York, is a keen and witty logician.

In a religious argument at a dinner party a scientist said:

"I've noticed, Doctor Guthrie, that agnostics often lead better lives than believers. How do you account for that?"

"It's easily accounted for," Doctor Guthrie answered. "The agnostic dares not sin because if he does, he has no God to go to for forgiveness."

Coat Dress Is to Be in Lead

Many Points in Favor of Garment Are Enumerated by Fashion Correspondent.

CAN BE MADE BY DRESSMAKER

Outfit Is Often More Becoming Than the Tailored Suit of Harder Lines and More Visible Stitching.

The coat dress has long been a rising factor in the wardrobe of the American woman. Those who have worn them have loved them dearly, have known that dresses of this general character could not be duplicated in any way. But their champions have been few and far between until the coming of the present season. Now, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, it looks very much as though the coat dress will lead them all.

For the spring season especially it has many attributes. It is warm enough without being too warm. It has the chic of a certain tailoring without being of too hard and fast a tailor's rule. It is trim looking, and, above all, it is so perfectly suited to all of the city outdoor activities which are so prevalent at just this season.

Then, there are many and various materials from which the coat dress can be made. It is as good in twill as it is in duvetyn. It is excellent in homespun, and it finds one of its finest expressions in some of the heavier silks. In fact, it offers the well dressed woman an opportunity to show her talent for dressing without any exterior coverings to mar the general effect.

Striped Lining of Coat Dress Comes Through to Form Wide Cuffs.

As the openings of American designers show their newer creations to the world, more and more of this type of street frocks are to be seen, and from the enthusiasm of the women who are looking at them with a view to buying there seems to be no doubt that they will be eminently successful.

Does Not Require Tailor.

The coat dress is something which does not necessarily require a tailor to make satisfactorily. It is a dress which a clever dressmaker can do quite as well, and for that reason, it is often more becoming than the tailored suit of harder lines and more visible stitching. Also the fabrics for coat dress being of the softest possible texture, they then fall more closely in harmony with the lines of the figure and help a woman to appear at her most graceful best.

There is a coat dress made of satin and duvetyn, the upper section being composed of the former material and the lower of the latter. Then you can see at a glance how cleverly the ends of the full, puffed sleeves have been handled in order to repeat the heavier fabric there and to carry out the simplicity of the design of the coat. The color of this particular coat dress was dark blue, the upper section being of that same tone. Then the satin of that bodice portion was carried down underneath the skirt section to make its lining. The lining was carried out to the very edge, so that when the skirt of the dress bobbed back and forth as its wearer walked along the street there appeared now and again that shiny glint of the satin that gave the frock lightness and ease and a decided gracefulness.

The neck of this dress is one of those exaggerated bateau lines that are allowed to stand straight around the throat. And in this case the satin is faced with the duvetyn, which gives, at that point, just a little variety of quality without in any way suggesting trimming. In fact, the only attempt at getting away from the solidity of two materials is when the buttons, only two in number, are added. They are of distinctly shiny dark blue composition, which adds variety of tone and a finish which happens to be just right.

Hat Matching the Gown.

The hat, then, is made from dark-blue satin, matching that which has been used for the dress. It is trimmed in that very new fashion of raising the mass of white flowers in front above the measure of the soft crown which gives that "snappy" little air so necessary to the smartest dressing of the season.

Into many of the coat dresses the general tendency for draping has been carried with a great deal of success. And this idea is perfectly illustrated by another coat dress made of a taupe-colored wool velours, in the lightest of its weights. Of course this material drapes better than any other woolen fabric, and it is no wonder that the designer has chosen it to carry out this model. Much in the manner of the draped afternoon and evening frocks, this coat dress has been wrapped around the figure until it has achieved a shape that is entirely consistent with the figure that wears it. The coat has that surplice, fichu line with a rolling collar carrying out the outline, and it ends in a bunch of draping over one hip where the fastening is marked by a brilliant green jade buckle. The fringing at the lower ends of the drapery is of the same shade of taupe from which the dress is made.

The lining of this coat dress is, perhaps, its most interesting feature. It is composed of a striped silk in colors of gold and green, with many varying shades of these tones woven into the pattern. The design takes a naive turn when the lining suddenly appears from its hiding place and proceeds to constitute the lower sections of the sleeves in lieu of large and spreading cuffs.

Ready for Wear at Any Time

Women who have succumbed to the coat dress are stating positively that they like it better for street wear than any other sort of costume. They say it means so much to have one garment do the whole trick. They like the idea of having only to adjust one set of hooks and eyes, one set of one collar and one snap at the waistline before their dressing operations are complete. You know there is a great deal in that, especially if you happen to be busy all day long and when the elimination of labor in your dressing becomes something to be striven for.

A dress of this sort, once it has been completed by a designer who knows his business, is ready for wear at any moment, and with the minimum amount of toil it can be snapped into place with no trouble about collars and cuffs or waists and skirts or any of those nuisances to which women have become so accustomed that sometimes they fail to see how possible it is to do without them.

A French dress made in this coat dress manner had the interesting design of a simple chemise dress. Of course it had tremendous sleeves to make it look more like the thing it was, but other than that it has every resemblance to the little frock which has held its popularity through so many changes and chances.

Its sleeves were embroidered over their entire surfaces with bright Russian colors and there was a belt, quite wide and straight, posed down low over the hips, which held the coat in that form known as a Russian blouse. There was a high standing collar, loose around the throat, and this carried out the same colored embroiderings, closing at the side where the whole coat opened in a straight line reaching from shoulder to hem.

Still another coat dress was made of one of those soft English tweeds woven in stripes of dull blue and a warm tan. The stripes reversed their natural way of life and ran around and around instead of up and down. This frock, while it was lined with soft satin in an old blue tone, had no other vestige of trimming anywhere about it. The stripes were allowed to do their decorative work unmolested, and they succeeded in doing it in an entirely satisfactory manner.

USE BRIGHT COLORS FOR SKIRTS

Snappy Tints Pronounced Both In Silk and Wool Fabrics for Coming Seasons.

Separate skirts will have their usual run of favor for spring and summer, especially for sport wear, and plain skirts promise to be more popular this year than the plaited models. Of course, plaited skirts are shown, but the plain ones are in the majority, and this holds true, no matter whether the fabric is of silk, cotton or wool.

In plain silk skirts—that is, unplaited ones—all sorts of interesting trimmings are featured. One smart heavy white silk crepe skirt recently displayed was decorated with oval motifs in black, formed of French knots. Another had a deep border all around the bottom made of chenille floss drawn through, knotted and trimmed, the sash girdle having ends similarly finished.

Both in silk and wool fabrics there is apparently to be a tremendous vogue for high colors, red especially. Toreador, poppy and Chinese red are some of the names given the very vivid shade so much approved, and that sweater and blouse manufacturers are bearing in mind the fact that bright-colored skirts are to be approved by Dame Fashion is shown by the garments they are offering. A sport blouse of fine white voile may be trimmed with bands and pipings of plain red and white dotted voile, and the same vivid color touches appear in many of the new sweaters of white silk or wool.

That there are clever variations even in a conventional wool plaid is demonstrated by a plain model finished at the bottom with square tabs or scallops that follow the plaid for size. Two smart slit pockets are also let in, one on either side.

Paisley Trimming.

Some of the choicest of black satin gowns are trimmed solely with Paisley bands.

The Chief Requisites.

"I wish to advertise our college."

"Certainly, sir. Shall I make a rough draft of the advertisement for you?"

"Yes. You might say that we have a faculty of seventy-five professors, $10,000,000 equipment and all facilities for higher education."

"Have you a stadium?"

"Oh, yes."

"A good football team?"

"One of the best in the country."

"Those two items should be set in extra large type. It doesn't really matter about the rest, but if you insist, the other advantages you offer to the youth of our country can be set in small type at the bottom."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Oh, your honor sir," said the laborer, "but he does draw."

"How so, my good man—what does he draw?"

ATLAS
PORTLAND CEMENT

FROM many points of view, construction in the country is more important than city construction. Property is apt to be under the same ownership for a lifetime instead of a few years. Fire protection is not efficient at long distances. These and other angles argue for building well and permanently.

Your local dealer can help in your building plans. He has, or will get for you, accurate information on any work you have in mind. You can afford to rely on his experience and judgment.

Most permanent construction today is of concrete. For twenty-five years concrete has been tested on all types of building and has made good. For twenty-five years Atlas Portland Cement has been known as "the Standard by which all other makes are measured."

MECHANISM CARE LENGTHENS LIFE

Average Owner of Car Knows Just About Enough to Put Foot on the Gas.

PROPER INSTRUCTION NEEDED

Course in Driving and in Automotive Mechanics Will Be Money and Time Well Spent—Instruction Book Will Help.

With about 2,000,000 automobiles being produced in this country annually, it can be taken for granted that about 6,000 cars are sold every business day of the year. A lot of purchasers are fairly green when it comes to operating their cars, to say nothing of taking the proper care of them.

Of course the buyer receives a certain amount of instruction as to running the machine from the man who sells it to him. That is to say, the owner when he finds himself alone with his newly acquired possession is apt to steer the thing well enough to keep between the two curbs of the street and to negotiate a corner by some hook or crook. He may know how to step on the gas, where at least one of the brake apparatus is and something about shifting gears.

Should Know His Car.

But there are a lot of things about a car that he should know, and if he doesn't know them he should get busy at once to acquire some knowledge. The best thing for him to do right off the bat is to take a short course in driving from some experienced man or in some recognized school, and a longer course in automotive mechanics. This will be time and money well spent in the long run.

At any rate, he should take the instruction book that comes with his car and learn it by heart. A good deal of it will be Greek to him, and it will be necessary to consult an expert to get an explanation of this technical information and make it somewhat understandable. This book should be reverenced next to the Bible. It is indispensable.

Doubtless the owner will find that the manufacturer has, for instance, given certain instructions concerning lubrication, perhaps has specified certain kinds of lubricants. Now, no matter how much you may know about the subject of lubrication, rest assured that the manufacturer has had an engineer study out the lubrication of his car, and what he writes concerning it is the last word, and it should be followed implicitly.

Service Depends on Care.

The same thing is true as to tires, brakes or steering gear, or any other part of the mechanism.

The owner, whether he possesses a low-priced car or an edition de luxe, has about as much money tied up in his auto as he feels he can devote to that particular form of pleasure or to business. It is an investment which will or will not bring commensurate returns in money or moments well spent. It can be made an indispensable aid to both business and pleasure or it may become an insufferable nuisance. The actual value of a car depends not so much upon the amount of the purchase price as upon what can be gotten out of it; its service, its dependability and general reliability; that and the low cost of upkeep and operation.

It is reasonable, therefore, for the owner to give as much thought and study to the machine which propels him and his merchandise as to the machine in the factory which produces the merchandise. He ought to understand how and why and wherefore it propels him—or why not.

TO BUILD COMBINED MUFFLER AND HEATER

Outline of Arrangement Not Easily Damaged.

Device Is Made by Assembling Short Sections of Pipes Such as Are Used for Waste and Fairly Thin-Walled.

Starting a car in cold weather is especially hard on the muffler and sometimes muffler shots demolish the muffler shells. An arrangement that is not easily damaged unless through a collision or accident may be made by assembling short sections of pipe such as are used by plumbers for waste pipes, fairly thin-walled. These can be connected with couplings and secured on the end of the exhaust pipe to replace the muffler. Six or eight sections make a muffler as efficient as the usual type bought.

An advantage afforded by the use of these pipes, as shown in the illustration, is that the heat may be directed into the car through a perforated cover.

This arrangement does not encroach upon the foot room, and in summer the perforated section can be covered with a piece of sheet iron and the sheet-iron box cover about the improvised heater muffler removed to avoid unduly heating the floor.—G. A. L., in Popular Science Monthly.

SCOTLAND YARD PARADES STOLEN CARS TO FIND RIGHTFUL OWNERS

In the yard of the Westchester guildhall, England, recently there was a great parade of stolen motor cars and of motor owners who thought they might find theirs in the crowd.

Elusive motor thieves have been making large hauls of motor cars recently in London and the outlying districts. Many of the cars have been recovered, but none of the culprits. The police of Scotland Yard took the cars out on parade in the hope that some of the cars would be identified by their owners.

Clean Brake Rod Linkage.

Brake rod linkage quickly becomes covered with dust, grit and mud which stiffens its action. The joint especially should be cleaned at frequent intervals with an equal mixture of kerosene and lubricating oil.

WOMEN THROWING OFF YOKE

Emancipation of the Sex Has Been Making Rapid Strides Throughout Palestine.

The emancipation of women in Palestine is taking place very rapidly. Women were not very seriously regarded heretofore. They were looked upon as a bit of chattel to be given little more regard than a dog or a cat about the home. They were bought and sold to the whims of the lord and master of the domestic establishments. They dared not leave the premises without special permission of the "husband." They were not even given any work to do, but of recent years a change has come over the scene and the women under the impetus of some greater freedom have developed into able artisans.

An exhibition of the work of the women of the country was held recently at Haifa and the results were greater than were hoped for by the most ardent supporters of the enterprise. There were many beautiful specimens of pottery, weaving, embroidery and other domestic accomplishments. Women have demanded and are receiving equality in the home and are entering into a line of activities from which they have been heretofore barred.

APPLES MAY HAVE RIPENED!

But No One Was Unkind Enough to Question Young Matron About That Peculiar Pie.

The Woman was week-ending at the suburban home of the Young Matron. Six or eight friends were having dinner with the couple.

For some months the proud bridegroom had been singing the praises of the Young Matron's experiences in the culinary art, particularly her pie-making ability.

"My husband insisted that I make an apple pie for you people, and I do hope it will be good," she explained. "The apples were a bit green and I am so afraid I did not put enough sugar in it."

When the much-discussed pastry appeared it looked promising indeed. The crust was flaky and browned to perfection, and the bridegroom's face bore an "I-told-you-so" expression. Sinking the knife deeply in it, the Young Matron lifted out a generous piece of (how the apples had ripened!) juicy, mince pie.—Chicago Journal.

MATTER OF GREATER MOMENT

Heckler's Query Concerning the Bolsheviks Surely Should Have Had Right of Way.

President Philip T. Dodge of the International Paper company, said at a reception in New York:

"Sentimental Socialism, the doctrine of Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells, used to be all the go, but we don't think quite so much of Sentimental Socialism today. We have found that the under dog, after all, isn't so very much better than the upper dog, and when the under dog gets on top—

"Take the bolsheviks, for instance. Wouldn't you rather be ruled over by President Harding or Lloyd George than by Lenin and Trotzky?

"The bolsheviks! A bolshevik sympathizer was haranguing from a soap box the other afternoon.

"'The bolsheviks are our brothers,' he yelled. 'Our brothers, our Russian brothers, are starving. Who will give them their meals?'

"'Who?' interrupted a heckler, 'will give them their deserts?'"

Something Suitable.

"They say music helps housework."

"Well, put something stirring on the graphophone. I'm making batter."

The Boy Who Started to Town With a Hundred Dollars

The advice they gave him for getting on in the world was simple and familiar enough: "Keep what you have, and build on it. Be careful what you do and it will grow into more."

It's a safe rule—with money or health, but a good many overlook the rule with health, until they have lost what they had. Then it's hard to get a new supply.

Postum is a splendid help in saving health from the very common losses through the drug elements of tea and coffee—whose effects on the nervous system any doctor can tell you.

Thousands of people who think it wise to be as careful of their health as they are of their dollars are users of Postum. They find this famous cereal beverage a delightful drink with any meal, and it's free from any disturbing element.

You can begin with Postum today, with an order to your grocer. The road to health is a good road for anybody to follow. "Save what you have, and build on it," is sound policy for everybody.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

J.; Mr. and Mrs. John Townsend, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Fennimore and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beardsley.

The first asparagus of the season is being gathered by growers of this locality and is finding a ready sale in nearby markets at 50 cents a bunch retail. Some of the fancy "grass" is bringing even higher prices but the warm weather during the past week brought the sprouts out of the ground so fast that the larger supply will soon force down the prices. Several thousand dollars are cleared by growers every spring through their asparagus. The soil in this section seems to be particularly well adapted for the growing of the "grass" and where there are well established beds the production is large. The profits from some of the large asparagus crops last spring are said to have exceeded $4000 in some cases while other growers made correspondingly excellent showings with the "grass" crop.

While at work on his father's farm, near town, on Friday morning, Stanley Townsend, son of Howard Townsend, had a narrow escape from serious injury only his presence of mind saving him from what was certain to inflict a permanent injury and perhaps a fatal one. Just as the team was approaching the gate in hauling a load of fertilizer out to a nearby field, a rein broke and the horses dashed madly toward the gate and the driver realizing that the wagon would strike one of the massive gate posts and be wrecked, jumped off the load just in time to avoid being in the pile of wreckage that followed, the [illegible], when the front wheel hit the post, and the wagon and contents were widely scattered, the wagon being completely wrecked by upsetting from the impact. The driver escaped with slight injuries, caused by leaping from the dangerous place in the runaway mishap.

his own business. After many weeks of delay, Commodore Foote interceding, Grant was allowed to proceed and soon he won the first great victory of the war on the Union side by the capture of the forts and the surrender of 14,000 men and 17,000 stand of arms. Grant had the right to expect praise and promotion for his great achievement, but General Hallock, who had never won a battle, suspended Grant for several weeks, putting him under arrest, because he had not properly reported, according to army rules, his account of the capture of the forts.

At this time, Grant was styled an interloper, an ex-captain, an ex-Galena clerk, a poor farmer, a failure in everything that he had followed. But General Grant did not sulk in his tent, nor mourn over these malignant enemies. When he was restored by Hallock, he immediately asked the privilege of proceeding against Nashville. Again Hallock denied his request. Grant always wanted to move immediately upon the enemies works—Hallock always held him back. After Grant won the terrible battle of Shiloh, he was determined to follow the Confederate army to Corinth and complete the triumph, but Hallock, taking command of the army in person, put Grant away to one side of the forces, and did not even invite him to the councils of war. But Grant, the silent patient man, knew he could afford to wait for vindication and victories.

When he finally reached the Lieutenant-Generalship of all the armies, he could have crushed little Hallock by a word, but he passed him by, without seeking to gratify revenge, and rode on to the conquest of the Rebellion, on to the Presidency of the Republic, on to the adoration of mankind, in his round the-world tour, on to the summit of Mt. McGregor, where, under awful suffering, in the very clutches of death, he wrote for the world his Memoirs, and ascended to the rewards and triumphs on the plains of immortality.

We behold the secret of Grant's greatness. He learned how to endure censure, slander, misrepresentation, hatred and opposition of every kind without answering back or becoming restless and treacherous. He thus acted for the sake of truth, patriotism and the being right with Almighty God. He stood the jeers of calumny till he received the cheers of true appreciation on earth and the welcome plaudits of the myriads whose ranks he joined when he received his final discharge.

Missionary Meeting

The Middletown District Meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society held in St. Paul's M. E. Church, Odessa, on Tuesday, was both interesting and instructive

The following officers were elected for the year: District Secretary, Miss Mabel Price, Middletown; Supt. of Young Peoples Work, Mrs. Robert Hodgson, Odessa; Supt. of Junior Work, Mrs. Walter Tatnal, Smyrna; Supt. of Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Mary L. Hoffecker, Smyrna; Secretary of Publicity, Miss Elizabeth McDowell, Smyrna; Secretary of Interdenominational Work, Miss Mary Staats, Odessa; Supt. of Literature, Mrs. A. W. Hearn, Middletown; Supt. of Extension Work, Miss Mollie Wilson, Middletown.

Missionary Meeting

A meeting of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of Bethesda M. E. Church was held at the home of Mrs. Jesse L. Shepherd, Tuesday evening, Apr. 18th. After devotional exercises led by Mrs Virginia Massey, the evening was given over to Miss Truax, Conference Secretary of the Foreign Society, Miss Laura White, who has been a missionary in China for thirty years, and Miss Susan Lodge, Secretary of the Home Base, of Philadelphia.

Miss White spoke of the need of Christian Literature in China, and told of many English stories and songs which she had translated into Chinese for the use of the women and children. Miss Lodge spoke of the needs of South America and Africa. Miss Truax greeted her many friends.

About fifty members and guests were present, and ice cream, cake and mints were served during the social hour.

Just in, a lot of ladies' Slip-over Sweaters—the uniquely beautiful Indian Navajo patterns, the very latest rage! Also handsome wool and silk sweaters in all the new shades.

STRENGTH-- VITALITY-- HAPPINESS

A Message to People in Poor Health Who Want to Be Well

If you are in poor health merely from a general run-down condition, get some Gude's Pepto-Mangan of your druggist and take it with your meals for a few weeks or until you feel right again. Pepto-Mangan is a wonderful tonic and blood-builder and is very pleasant to take. It does not act like a miracle. Its effects are gradual, but real and sure. It contains iron in a form easily digested and absorbed by the system. For thirty years Gude's Pepto-Mangan has been used by physicians as a tonic for run-down people. Don't continue to be weak, nervous, and headachy—take Gude's Pept-Mangan and restore your good health. Thousands have been helped back to health by it—you can be benefitted if you will accept this truth and act now. Sold in both liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

Dandelion Wine is Barred

Manufacturers of dandelion wine will not be countenanced by the State of Delaware, according to Judges Rice and Rodney, who Friday paroled John F. Blanche, a Greenwood farmer, for two years. They took occasion in pronouncing sentence to serve warning on all citizens the making of wine was as much a violation of the Prohibition act as the making of whisky or other intoxicating beverages.

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

NASH

IT IS interesting to observe to what lengths Nash goes in painstaking shop practice, because it bears directly upon the quality that has earned Nash cars their nation-wide esteem.

To make certain that Nash cylinders are absolutely true, a stream of cold water is circulated through the water jackets as the barrels are machined. This prevents heat being generated by the operation of machining, and it is heat that expands the cylinder and causes the variations in size which distinguish inferior cylinders from Nash cylinders.

America Returns to Forefather Thrift

For generations the word "economy" has been seldom heard. "Our country is fabulously rich, so why should anybody save the pennies when dimes, even dollars, can be plucked from almost any bush?"

But the sharp reaction from the wild war boom extravagance is driving many to practice this forgotten Thrift of the forefathers.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and told him to use it freely" says C. P. Rayder, Patten Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar saying, give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me."
